Turning back to Medra, she said, "We're prisoners, and so.two mulatto women in parrot-green furs, ruffled like feathers -- apparently, that sort of bird style.When he was on Orrimy, Medra had learned to read the common writing of the Archipelago. Later, Highdrake of Pendor had taught him some of the runes of power. That was known lore. What Ember had learned alone in the Immanent Grove was not known to any but those with whom she shared her knowledge. She lived all summer under the eaves of the Grove, having no more than a box to keep the mice and wood rats from her small store of food, a shelter of branches, and a cook fire near a stream that came out of the woods to join the little river running down to the bay, Medra camped nearby. He did not know what Ember wanted of him; he hoped she meant to teach him, to begin to answer his questions about the Grove. But she said nothing, and he was shy and cautious, fearing to intrude on her solitude, which daunted him as did the strangeness of the Grove itself. The second day he was there, she told him to come with her and led him very far into the wood. They walked for hours in silence. In the summer midday the woods were silent. No bird sang. The leaves did not stir. The aisles of the trees were endlessly different and all the same. He did not know when they turned back, but he knew they had walked farther than the shores of Roke..hand pressed to his hip joint, which made it a little easier to walk. The walls narrowed gradually."You might have a bit of linen, though, mistress? woven, or thread? Linen of Pody is the best-so.lioness persisted. He struck her with a paw. She snorted furiously..no true speech. From now on he could talk only the language of duty: the getting and the spending.. "Oh yes.
