In the young dowser he recognized a power, untaught and inept, which he could use. He needed much more quicksilver than he had, therefore he needed a finder. Finding was a base skill. Gelluk had never practiced it, but he could see that the young fellow had the gift. He would do well to learn the boy's true name so that he could be sure of controlling him. He sighed at the thought of the time he must waste teaching the boy what he was good for. And after that the ore must still be dug out of the earth and the metal refined. As always, Gelluk's mind leapt across obstacles and delays to the wonderful mysteries at the end of them..The weather was fair for once: a following wind, a blue sky lively with little white clouds, the.Telio, built of rosy sandstone, and fields and orchards that should have been fertile. But the.He had been stowed in a storeroom of one of the old palaces that Losen had appropriated. It had no. The great scholar-mage Ath compiled a lore-book that brought together much scattered knowledge, particularly of the words of the Language of the Making. His Book of Names became the foundation of naming as a systematic part of the art magic. Ath left his book with a fellow mage on Pody when he went into the west, sent by the king to defeat or drive back a brood of dragons who had been stampeding cattle, setting fires, and destroying farms all through the western isles. Somewhere west of Ensmer, Ath confronted the great dragon Orm. Accounts of this meeting vary; but though after it the dragons ceased their hostilities for a while, it is certain that Orm survived it, and Ath did not. His book, lost for centuries, is now in the Isolate Tower on Roke. Hemlock was 10th to practice any of the lesser arts of magic. He did not put out a finding spell, as any sorcerer might have done. Nor did he call to Diamond in any way. He was angry; perhaps he was hurt. He had thought well of the boy, and offered to write the Summoner about him, and then at the first test of character Diamond had broken. "Glass," the wizard muttered. At least this weakness proved he was not dangerous. Some talents were best not left to run wild, but there was no harm in this fellow, no malice. No ambition. "No spine," said Hemlock to the silence of the house. "Let him crawl home to his mother." fields, and faded into the light, and were gone. Licky had told him that it was the fumes of the metal rising from heated ore that sickened and. "A mage called Highdrake told me that when Ath stayed in Pendor, he told a wizard there that he'd." Books?" said a rush plaiter on North Sudidi. "Like that there?" He pointed to long strips of vellum that had been worked into the thatching of his house. "They good for something else?" Crow, staring up at the words visible here and there between the rushes in the eaves, began to tremble with rage. Tern hurried him back to the boat before he exploded. stockings on his battered feet and limped into the kitchen. Emer stood at the big sink, straining. It was far more convenient to him that Losen should be king than that he himself should rule Havnor openly. Men of arms didn't trust men of craft and didn't like to serve them. No matter what a mage's powers, unless he was as mighty as the Enemy of Morred, he couldn't hold armies and fleets together if the soldiers and sailors chose not to obey. People were in the habit of fearing and obeying Losen, an old habit now, and well learned. They credited him with the powers he had had of bold strategy, firm leadership, and utter cruelty; and they credited him with powers he had never had, such as mastery over the wizards who served him. of his plans, an extension of himself. "Yes, yes, you will," he said, and smiled again. the sands of Thwil Bay, where he was repairing a fishing boat. Gelluk's attention turned entirely away from him then, fixed on the hillside and the vision he saw. It was only illusion, of course, but it checked him a moment in his spell, and then he had to undo the illusion, bringing back the door frame around him, the walls and roof beams, the gleam of light on crockery, the hearth stones, the table. But nobody sat at the table. His enemy was gone. He could not say the other name, but he could think of the trees; of the roots of the trees. This sign in return, "but not always safe, among strangers." But Heleth was shaking his head: "No," he said, "no time. Not your kind of thing." He was more and. at last. A curved corridor with an inclined floor, as sometimes in the theater; from its walls, "He's angry," Diamond said, "but he won't do anything." Veil, with her gentle voice and smile, was implacable. She told Medra that though she had consented to his remaining on Roke, it was to keep watch on him. "You broke through our defenses once," she said. "All that you say of yourself may be true, and may not. What can you tell me that would make me trust you?" They worked and taught in the Great House. They saw it go up stone on stone, every stone steeped in spells of protection, endurance, peace. They saw the Rule of Roke established, though never so firmly as they might wish, and always against opposition; for mages came from other islands and rose up from among the students of the school, women and men of power, knowledge, and pride, sworn by the Rule to work together and for the good of all, but each seeing a different way to do it. If Elfarran be not my own, I will unsay Segoy's word, mage, a pale man from the North named Gelluk, who was much feared in Havnor. After spending the next several days trying to recapture the missing word, he had set Silence to him, but she watched him in wonder. greatest healer of all Earthsea, who lives in far Narveduen, and when he comes, your highness will. "The Patterner sent for us," said the Master Herbal. He looked uncomfortable. Noticing a clump of weeds under the window, he said, "That's velvet. Somebody from Havnor planted it here. Didn't know there was any on the island." He examined it attentively, and put some seedpods into his pouch. all but floated up the stairs himself, borne on such visions. give birth to her master. There were no women. he was cheating, hiding his power, a rival hiding his power? A jealous rival. He must be stopped. "At home," Otter said. It wasn't a lie. He did have a pouch at home. He kept his fine-work tools. "Get back, you black-hearted bitch!" she yelled. "Home, you crawling traitor!" And the dogs fell silent and went sidling back to the house with their tails down. Among the Hardic-speaking people of the Archipelago, the ability to do magic is an inborn talent, like the gift for music, though far rarer. Most people lack it entirely. In a few people, perhaps one in a hundred, it is a latent, cultivable talent. In a very few people it is manifest without training. opposite me with both hands and said: To it he flew, and on it landed, and as he touched the earth he was a man again. paying copper where he thought he might have to pay ivory.
